Summary:

Chain Saws, Weed Eaters, Pū, and 'Awa is how the Ala Loa gets things done. 15 HAMMERS from 'Ōpio to Kūpuna reconnect to Kanaloa Kaho'olawe through the opening Ahupū Camp and reopening of the Ala Loa through Ahupū to Ahupūiki.

Chain Saws cut through the kiawe. Weed eaters clear the path. This kine Hard work is Aloha 'Āina. Planning for the future and connecting us to the past. Removing the layers that separate us from 'Āina. This hard work revealed a small memorial for a veteran of the Blue Ghosts was found near 106k. The name FREEMAN was found on painted on a river stone.

The Ala Loa now gives us access to wahi pana such as cultural site 121g; full of Ki'i Pōhaku, mo'olelo of our kupuna. Trail work also connected us to Lae o nā Koholā, where at its shores were found the 'iwi of the po'o of a baby koholā. This is further confirmation to mo'olelo of this being a calving area for koholā. Ua ho'i iā Kanaloa.

Work on the Ala Loa continues to open wide and clear path for its past and future. Trails are cut wide and open over head. We look forward to a time when Lonoikamakahiki can travel via Ala Loa around the Kaho‘olawe and assess the work and growth in all ‘ili/moku of Kaho‘olawe.

At the end of the work this section of the trail was officially opened with pū, ‘awa, and mele. Led by Pō and the 4fathers, the PIKO, and the PKO sung the mele aloha ‘āina/mele lāhui: Hawai‘i Loa. From the the Pu‘u Pānoa at Ahupū our leo will be heard in the next release from Mana Mele.

Our mele, our mo‘olelo, our mana connect with our kupuna’s. Through the hard work will build pilina with what was before and what will come. We look forward to being all re-kanak-ted
